1. The finality of the rejection of the last Office action, dated 3/15/07, is withdrawn due in view of the newly rejection.

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The claims recite apparatus for performing a mathematical function. It is also noted that apparatus claim 6-8 broadly recite a plurality of "devices". It is unclear the "devices" are implemented by software, general hardware (e.g., computer) or specific physical structures.

"[t]o satisfy section 101 requirements, the claim must be for a practical application of the Sec. 101 judicial exception, which can be identified in various ways:

- . The claimed invention "transforms" an article or physical object to a different state or thing.
- . The claimed invention otherwise produces a useful, concrete and tangible result,..."

See "Interim Guidelines for Examination of Patent Applications for Patent Subject Matter Eligibility" OG Date: 22 November 2005.

In order for claims to be statutory, claims must include a practical application with a concrete, useful, and tangible result. However, claims 6-8 merely devices for performing mathematical function without disclosing a practical application with a concrete, useful, and tangible result, as they are pre-emptive in any application. Therefore, claims 6-8 are directed to non-statutory subject matter.
